Corcraft’s steel manufacturing shop at Fishkill Correctional Facility specializes in the fabrication of steel, aluminum and stainless steel products. Corcraft and Fishkill staff can design, fabricate and install a wide range of products based on customers’ needs and vision.

We Manufacture What You Need

Corcraft encourages customers to provide product ideas that will suit their needs. If a product is green-lit, a Manufacturing Engineer creates drawings for production, the customer reviews the design, a prototype is created and changes are made until the product meets the proper specifications. Fishkill and Corcraft staff work closely with the customer to track every detail of product development and manufacturing.

The specialty steel shop at Fishkill utilizes three types of welding techniques: TIG, MIG and Stick. Steel work includes cutting, shearing, bending, forming and punching. Several finishing options are available: powder coating, wet paint, galvanizing and chroming.
